

Buddi has an opportunity for a dynamic and energetic Sales Account Manager to join our Health Sales Team, based in the southern half of England.

A creative aptitude and approach has proved essential during 2020 and with exciting new products in development, our success and growth for 2021 and beyond is there for the taking!

As a confident and self-motivated sales professional, you'll need to demonstrate a strong and successful sales and account management background, preferably gained within the health or assistive technology sector.

Your role will have a key focus on driving new business within a B2B environment, as well as building and developing existing customer accounts for organic growth.

To be successful in our team you must be resilient, proactive, highly organised, a strong communicator and empathetic, as well as possess a determination to be successful in a challenging and exciting environment.

A passion for technology and a genuine desire to work for one of the leading technology companies in this market sector will be a distinct advantage.

If this sounds like you, and you're ready for an exciting new challenge, email your CV and salary expectations to fiona@buddi.co.uk and tell her in no more than 100 words why you want to work for Buddi, and what difference you will make to our team.

Closing date 30 November 2020.

Strictly no agencies.