

Press Release 23rd October 2020

Alcuris appointed as a supplier to the Spark DPS.

Alcuris is delighted to announce that we have been appointed to the RM6094 Spark Dynamic Procurement System (DPS) provided by Crown Commercial Services (CCS). The SPARK DPS enables UK Public Sector bodies to access proven, new, and innovative technology products such as Internet of Things (IoT), and AI.

Spark DPS hopes to fill a gap identified by CCS and its public sector clients for the supply of new products emerging from technology innovation. Suppliers on Spark must demonstrate that they can provide at least one new or innovative technology for one or both of 'Radical' and 'Disruptive' Innovation.

Alcuris has submitted its Next Generation Telecare Memo suite in the Disruptive Innovation category. This is defined by Spark as innovation that creates a new market and value network and eventually disrupts an existing market and value network, displacing established market-leading firms, products, and alliances.

Alex Nash, Managing Director said

"We are excited to see our Memo Next Generation Telecare suite recognised in this way and pleased that our customers have a new means of procuring our innovative services.

With the shift from analogue equipment to digital services, the increasing focus on proactive preventative services and rising demand pressures in the face of budgetary constraints we look forward to our public sector clients taking advantage of this innovative DPS from Crown Commercial Services"

The advantages of the Spark DPS include

- Allows customers access to proven new technology innovations which are useful for solving public sector problems
- A dynamic filtering system, giving customers flexibility based on requirements
- Fully compliant with UK and EU regulations.
